HURRICANE'S FURY TAKES ITS TOLL OF LIFE AND PROPERTY

Several Dead in Eastern Cuba — Unidentified Schooner Goes Down Off Coast of Jamaica, Which Suffers Tremendously From Wind and Flood—Banana Crop Damaged

SANTIAGO, Cuba, Oct. 22 (AP).—Eastern Cuba apparently had weathered the fury of a Caribbean hurricane tonight with a death toll of from one to four, twenty-nine persons reported hurt and with less property damage than had been anticipated.

One woman was killed here, buildings were unroofed and streets were cluttered with debris. A report from Calmanera, not entirely confirmed, said three persons were drowned there.

STORM AT STANDSTILL
Reports over restored communication lines failed to show major damage in other East Cuban towns, however, and the Meteorological Bureau at Havana said the storm had reached a virtual standstill in Oriente Province, north-northwest of Santiago.

KINGSTON, Jamaica, Oct. 22 (AP).—While reports of flood damage continued to reach Kingston tonight, fishermen of Port Antonio sent in word they had tried vainly to rescue the crew of an unidentified two-masted schooner that went down during the storm.

IN BOTTOMLESS WATERS
The schooner sank in bottomless "Blue Hole," the fishermen said, and there was little likelihood that any traces of the ship would ever be found.

The wreck raises the number of fatalities in Jamaica as a result of the hurricane now pounding through the Caribbean from one to an untold number. An eleven-year-old boy was trapped by a flood near Kingston yesterday and swept by angry waters out into the harbor. Repaired communication lines brought word tonight that one man had been drowned and several others rescued in the eastern section of the island.

Other reports stated banana lighters had been sunk at Port Antonio. TREMENDOUS DAMAGE
Hurricane-torn for the past month, Jamaica has suffered tremendous damage from wind and flood. Banana growers estimate about 70 per cent of their island's crop has been destroyed, representing a loss of about $2,500,000.

OFF ON FLIGHT TO AUSTRALIA

Kingsford-Smith, With Co-Pilot, Leaves on Dash To Antipodes

LONDON, Oct. 23 (AP).—Sir Charles Kingsford-Smith, noted trans-Pacific flyer, took off from Croydon Airfield today, on a projected flight to Australia.

Kingsford-Smith, accompanied by Co-Pilot J. T. Pethybridge, was flying his famous plane, the Lady Southern Cross. He set his England-Australia record by way of Marseille, Cairo, Baghdad and Singapore. Among those who bade farewell to him at the airport was C. Melrose, young Australian pilot, who holds the record for a solo flight to Australia, and C. W. A. Scott, who flew last year in the England-Melbourne air race.

Kingsford-Smith, who had postponed the start of his flight owing to a slight illness over the weekend, told his friends at the airport: "I am feeling fit, but not so fit as I would wish, because a chill Sunday gave me a nasty shakeup. Still, I think I'll be all right."

SAYS OIL KILLING MILLIONS OF BIRDS

TORONTO, Oct. 22 (AP).—Dr. T. Gilbert Pearson, New York ornithologist, declared today millions of birds meet their death through the pollution of the ocean by oil-burning vessels. "Oil gets on their feathers. The birds are washed up on the beaches by the millions," said Dr. Pearson.

CANADA'S CHAMPION WINS IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Oct. 22 (AP).—Canada's all-round cowboy, Herman Linder, of Cardston, Alta., won tonight's bronk-riding contest with saddle, at the Madison Square Garden rodeo.

SANDWICH, Sask., Oct. 22 (AP).—Thieves who apparently got tired trying to break open a safe in a store here and smashed a cash register instead, didn't know what they missed. They got $3 from the cash register; the safe contained $400.

DEATH CALLS LORD CARSON

Career Ends of Fighting Leader of Ulstermen and Noted Statesman

MINSTER, Kent, England, Oct. 22 (AP).—Baron Carson, noted Irish statesman, former First Lord of the Admiralty and member of the war cabinet without portfolio in 1917-18, died today at his home in Kent. He was eighty-one years old.

A native of Dublin, but a bitter opponent of any break between Ireland and England, Baron Carson had been in failing health for several weeks.

As Sir Edward Henry Carson, the leader of the Irish Unionist Party for nearly a decade preceding his resignation in 1921, he had dabbled in English politics more than fifteen years before he adopted Ulster as his province and rode to fame as one of the most uncompromising members of the British Parliament in London.

HAVE DEFERRED PROCLAMATION

Legislation Pending in Ontario to Cancel Power Purchase Contracts

TORONTO, Oct. 22 (AP).—Proclamation of Ontario's Legislature cancelling the Province's power purchase contracts with four Quebec companies was deferred late today pending a conference between representatives of the companies and the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission engineers.

Announcement of the postponement was made by Premier Hepburn following the meeting with the power interests, but he said proclamation would be made later.

TO MAKE AN OFFER
Immediately the meeting was adjourned, the Quebec men left for a downtown hotel to meet the engineers. The purpose of the meeting, the Premier said, was so that the power companies "could make a concrete offer regarding reduction in the amount of power purchased by Ontario."

Hon. Honore Mercier, Quebec Minister of Lands and Forests, and Arthur Amos, director of hydro-electric services in the department, also conferred with the cabinet, but Mr. Hepburn said they were not present when the power interests were heard.

Repeal of Silver Act Requested

NEW YORK, Oct. 22 (AP).—The New York Board of Trade appealed today to President Roosevelt, Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau and members of Congress that the Silver Purchase Act of June, 1934, be repealed on the ground that it is futile.

"The ratio of silver to gold as of one to three is now an apparent impossibility," it said in a letter to the President. "The purpose of the act cannot be realized."
A committee of the board held the act pernicious as an inflationary measure "for it opens the door to an endless variety of bonuses and subsidies."

ARABS WILL PROTEST JEWISH GUN-RUNNING

JAFFA, Palestine, Oct. 22 (CP-Palmer Agency).—All Arabs in Palestine today were summoned to join a general strike on Saturday in protest against alleged gun-running by Jews. The charge arose out of discovery of a large store of arms unloaded from a Belgian ship here last week.

Overtime Stay of Italian Consul May Be for Butterflies

ADDIS ABABA, Oct. 22 (AP).—Butterflies, it appeared today, may be one reason why Luigi Vinci-Gigliucci, the Italian Consul, is staying overtime in Addis Ababa.
One of the members of the Italian consular staff at Mogale, for whom Vinci is waiting, is a butterfly collector. It was said he desired to obtain new specimens along the route between Gushara and Mojo, and therefore is proceeding slowly by caravan toward the capital.

Vinci, meanwhile, is spending most of his time playing cards with Major Calderini, his military attaché. Both are virtual prisoners in a private home here.

Two Missing Flyers Turn Up Safe After Crash in Mt. Rainier

U.S. Army Reservists Report Narrow Escape From Death on Sunday When Plane Is Wrecked in Storm and Then Burned

SEATTLE, Oct. 22 (AP).—Capt. Henry M. Walker and Lieut. Jack M. Goldstein, army reservists, arriving here tonight, told how their army plane crashed and burned in the foothills of Mount Rainier on Sunday.

The officers came by automobile from Morton, Wash., which they reached this afternoon after stumbling through dense wilderness since the wreck.
Walker and Goldstein reported to Army Reserve air headquarters at Boeing Field, and then went to the post hospital at Fort Lawton for treatment of injuries they received when the plane struck and while they fought their way through rugged country to Morton.

BOTH RECEIVE INJURIES
Goldstein had a broken nose and severe lacerations on his right arm. Captain Walker was cut and bruised on the face and hands.

"They said the wreck was caused by the plane losing the Seattle-Portland radio beam along which they were flying. A few minutes later the plane crashed into the forest," they said.

While two tremors of moderate intensity again pounded the riddled city late today, and revived a bit of fear after hours of relative quiet, plans steadily forged ahead for reconstruction and relief.
The American Red Cross brought food, shelter and protection to the 400 persons huddled at Camp Cooney, as "Wintry" winds howled after nightfall.

CITY HALL UNSAFE
The city council moved from the unsafe City Hall to the library for central offices in which it will direct its relief work.
Barriers against traffic in the business district were removed and only two blocks of the main business district was barred to motorists and pedestrians.
Theaters, churches and schools remained closed, however.

FOREIGN SECRETARY MAKES BRITAIN'S POSITION CLEAR

Has Never Even Proposed Consideration of Military Sanctions Against Italy and Has No Intention of Acting Alone to Halt Present Campaign in East Africa

Makes a Strong Appeal For Honorable Settlement

LONDON, Oct. 22 (AP).—Sir Samuel Hoare, Foreign Secretary, today issued an appeal for an honorable settlement of the Italo-Ethiopian controversy and said Great Britain had no intention of acting alone to halt the campaign in East Africa.

Sir Samuel outlined in detail the progress of the quarrel between the two countries in opening debate in the House of Commons on the international situation. It was the start of a three-day sitting of Parliament which will be followed by dissolution Friday.

Sanctions to be taken against Italy were economic and not military, he said. "We have never even proposed to the French consideration of any military measures."

Certain countries failed to realize, said Sir Samuel, that "most of us regard the League as a bridge between Great Britain and Europe and that, if this bridge is gravely weakened and broken, co-operation, between us and the Continent becomes difficult and dangerous."

SINCERITY UNRECOGNIZED
He said they "did not realize the sincerity of our hope and faith in the new order of international relations. They failed to understand our belief in the League as an instrument not only for stopping war, but also as an instrument for removing its causes."

The Foreign Secretary emphasized that Britain's interest in collective security and world peace was the motive for her firm stand at the League.

WILL INCREASE MOBILE FORCE

French Police to Be Reinforced to Guard Against Political Disturbances

(Copyright, 1934, by HAVAS News Agency)
PARIS, Oct. 22 (CP-Havas).—France's mobile police force will be increased to a total of 20,000 men to maintain a constant check against political disturbances, it was learned tonight after Premier Laval's domestic and foreign policies were unanimously approved by the cabinet.

The possibility of serious disorders on the part of the militant Croix de Feu Nationalists and any government opponents who emerge in future would thus be countered by a speedy armed patrol system.

HOPES FOR EARLY PEACE
There is reason to hope negotiations now under way in London, Rome and Paris will result in cessation of hostilities in East Africa, Premier Laval told the cabinet.

M. Laval also appeared tonight before the finance committee of the Chamber of Deputies. The decrees, he said, had enabled him to cut 11,000,000 francs from the 1936 budget, resulting in a balanced budget for the current year. Only exceptional expenditures, notably those for national defence, required a loan, he said.

Ship Is Beached in the Thames After Collision With Outbound Australian Liner

LONDON, Oct. 22 (AP).—The Dutch motor vessel Alcione, of 4,500 tons registry, was seriously damaged tonight in a collision in the Thames below London with the Aberdeen As Commonwealth liner Moreton Bay, which was starting for Australia.

The 14,000-ton Moreton Bay rescued the eight-man crew of the Alcione, which was smashed in on her port side and beached. One man was hurt.

The Moreton Bay, en route to Southampton to pick up passengers for Australia, was not damaged.

Oakland Ravaged By Violent Wind

OAKLAND, Cal., Oct. 22 (AP).—A suddenly violent north wind swept through the East Bay district tonight, uprooting trees and blowing down power poles. Several apartment houses in the Park View Terrace district above Lake Merritt were plunged into darkness when two poles cracked off under pressure of the wind.

Henderson Asks for Complete Acquittal Of Indian Brothers

Completes Defence of Four Charged With Murdering Policeman—Attorney-General to Present Crown's Address in Vancouver Trial

VANCOUVER, Oct. 22.—With a plea to the jury for complete acquittal of his clients, Stuart Henderson, veteran Victoria criminal lawyer, tonight concluded the defence of the four Indian George brothers, charged with the murder of Dominion Indian Constable F. H. Gishourne.

Tomorrow morning Attorney-General Gordon Sloan will present the Crown's address, and after instructions from Chief Justice Aulay Morrison, the fate of Alex, Eneas, Richardson and Joseph George will rest with the jury.

SLAIN ON RESERVE
Gishourne and Provincial Constable Percy Carr were slain May 23, 1934, on the Canford Reserve, near Merritt, B.C., where they had gone to investigate the stabbing of Eneas' wife.

"Can you convict these men on the unsatisfactory evidence of the prosecution," asked Mr. Henderson, "I ask you, gentlemen, to release them not only from the charge of murder but from any other charge which might be laid against them, including manslaughter. What they did is the exercise of a right which is as old as the law itself—the law of self-defence—and I ask you to do that in the firm belief that if you paid attention to the evidence you can not come to any other conclusion."

ATTACKS MOTIVES
In his concluding remarks Mr. Henderson expressed the opinion that officials had not been using the law properly, but were getting along with a minimum of effort for them. He said it would be much better for all concerned if the Indian Department at Ottawa did away with the system of motives.

The accused, said the defence counsel, thought they were going to be killed, so they tried to protect themselves. They didn't know that Gishourne's automatic had jammed and they didn't know that Carr did not have a revolver, as he ought to.

Old Tacoma Hotel Razed by Flames

Fire recently razed the famous and picturesque Tacoma Hotel, in Tacoma, with a loss estimated at $500,000, all of which was covered by insurance. Two fire-fighters were painfully burned and eight guests were overcome by smoke. One hundred and twenty-five guests fled from the blazing structure, many leaping from windows into life nets. Photo shows firemen battling the stubborn blaze.

General. "No thought of Imperial interest save a natural concern which a world-fung Empire must feel for preservation of world-peace, has entered into our minds."

Fighting Irishman's Career Is Ended

Such action, taken alone, would destroy Britain's contention that "this is not a quarrel between Britain and Italy." There would never be collective agreement for such action, he declared.

REAFFIRMED FRIENDSHIP
Reaffirming British friendship for Italy, Sir Samuel declared there was no quarrel with Fascism, noted that Italy is still a member of the League and said there was still "a breathing spell left before the application of economic pressure begins."

"Cannot this eleven-hour chance be so used as to make it unnecessary to proceed further along this unattractive road of economic action against a fellow member, an old friend and a former ally?" he asked.

NO PART OF POLICY
Of military sanctions, he said a collective agreement at Geneva, which is a prerequisite for the enforcement of such sanctions, "has never existed and such measures, therefore, have never formed any part of our policy."

Expressing disbelief that anyone in Europe wants war, Sir Samuel said: "How unscrupulous, in view of these facts, that propagandists hold us up as war mongers who are determined to plunge the world into a general conflagration!"

Remarks also were directed toward "alien slanders" and "lies" against British conduct in the dispute.

Referring to the solidarity of the British Empire and the support of the Dominions, "in one of the most critical situations that has faced us in this generation," Sir Samuel remarked: "Let those prophets of misfortune who have marked down the

CREDIT SOCIETY FORGES AHEAD

G. A. A. Hebben Pays Tribute To Work of Harry Dawson At Luncheon Meeting

Having increased its membership from twenty-two to over 100 members since its inception in October, 1932, the Credit-Granters' Association in Victoria has made remarkable progress, and its members should be proud of its successful efforts to bring about mutual advantages for local buyers and sellers.

High tribute to the efficiency, enthusiasm and integrity of the secretary, Harry Dawson, was paid by G. A. A. Hebben, told the association yesterday at a luncheon meeting in Spencer's dining-room.

Mr. Hebben spoke of the remarkable progress that had been made in different communities and countries for a standard and uniform practice in credit granting.

MANY ASSOCIATIONS
He referred to abuses that could creep into the system from the ranks of both buyers and sellers. The speaker pointed out it was the duty of the seller not to oversell the customer or undermine credit granting by being lax in collections.

In the United States there are some 1,400 credit-granting associations, twenty in Canada, and fifty in European countries.

Telling of the service of the local association, Mr. Hebben referred briefly to the work of gathering full information on persons asking for credit; methods of turning down disreputable persons; setting of definite collecting dates, and avoidance of confusing terminology in credit granting.

"CREDIT IS A SERVICE"
"Credit is a service—a privilege. Something that is not a necessity. Credit is built on confidence," Mr. Hebben pointed out.

Declaring it was indicative of the high place to which the local association had attained, the Pacific Northwest convention of credit-granters' associations will be held in Victoria next Spring, the speaker stated.

lice, officials said, but leaked out under underworld channels.

Later police heard that Charles Burns, then president of Carling's Brewery, London, was kidnapped and another $30,000 ransom reportedly paid.

THREATENED WITH TORTURE
Also, in 1927, Sam Low, Windsor exporter, told police he had been kidnapped and kept several days in a cottage at Cedar Beach, thirty-five miles from Windsor, where he was threatened with torture by fire.

Today's disclosure recalled a few words mentioned last July at Ban-non's preliminary hearing, when Michael McCordell, self-confessed kidnapper of Labatt, told of a previous trip to Canada in 1931 in connection with the "Bronfman case."

ARREST CAUSED ALARM
One man was arrested in a hotel for impersonating a police officer. The others then became alarmed and fled across the border. Before that, in Toronto, another of the gang, overtaken by officers for questioning, swallowed the parking check for the car in which the arms and ammunition were stored. The gangsters were trailed through many parts of the United States. Two eventually were slain by police and gangster bullets and at least two others were caught on other charges and sent to penitentiary for long terms.

MANY INTERESTS
Another of her special interests was photography, a hobby which she pursued not only with enthusiasm, but with well-developed technical knowledge and artistry. On more than one occasion her work was singled out for special mention by the Coast monthly magazine.

DEATH CALLS LORD CARSON

his opposition to Home Rule for Ireland.

His first open declaration against the proposed Irish Parliament was made in 1911, when he delivered a stirring speech attacking both the British and Irish leaders who advocated a Home Rule bill including Ulster in its provisions. Instantly the Ulstermen recognized him as a fighting leader who could take the field and hold his own even against such distinguished supporters of Home Rule as Premier Asquith, Winston Spencer Churchill and Andrew Bonar Law.

It was a losing fight from the beginning, but Lord Carson's enthusiasm for Ulster's cause never waned, even after the Home Rule bill was passed.

BRINK OF TREASON

His defiance led him to the brink of treason and might have ended disastrously had not the Great War eclipsed his activities. He had gone so far as to organize and train the Ulster Volunteers for civil war against the British Government if Home Rule were forced upon Ulster.

His volunteers, however, saw their first action in Flanders, the Union Jack waving over their heads.

Lord Carson was born in Dublin, February 9, 1854, the second son of a well-to-do architect. His education was completed at Trinity College, Dublin, where he went to Parliament. He was called to the Irish bar in 1877 and did yeoman service under the chief secretaryship of Arthur J. Balfour during that disturbed period.

In 1899 he went to England to engage in private practice, and had built up a lucrative practice when he was appointed Solicitor-General for Ireland. In 1900 he was appointed Solicitor-General for Great Britain, serving until 1905, when he was made a Privy Councillor.

The Great War brought Lord Carson many new opportunities. In 1915 he accepted appointment as Attorney-General in the new Cabinet formed by Premier Asquith, but his resignation was written six months later, after a speech in the House of Commons wherein he declared the Asquith Government was incapable of prosecuting the war.

With the advent of Premier Lloyd George, Lord Carson was made First Lord of the Admiralty, serving until July, 1917, when he resigned to become a minister without portfolio.

Early in 1918 he resigned from the Cabinet and spent the next two years fighting on behalf of Ulster. His appointment to the House of Lords came late in 1921, when he was named Lord of Appeal, a place left vacant by the death of Lord Moulton.

Lord Carson in 1879 married Sarah Annette Foster, by whom he had two sons and two daughters. He died in 1935, and in the following year he married Ruby Frewen, and they had one son. His eldest boy, by his first marriage died in 1930, having been a farmer in South Africa and having seen service in Annette Foster, by whom he had

Premier Pattullo Suggests Expansion Of Canada's Credit

Hon. T. D. Pattullo Itemizes British Columbia Wants at Federal Conference, and Makes Spirited Reply to Liberal Press in Vancouver

ADVOCACY of expansion of internal credit in Canada coupled with a national public works programme, outline of British Columbia aims at the coming Federal conference, parliamentary reasons for expected delay in the calling of Omineca and Burrard Provincial elections, and a warm defence against what he described as personal attacks in the press to embarrass his position in the British Columbia Government, formed the main subjects touched on by Premier Pattullo in an address broadcast from his office here last evening.

"During the last provincial campaign I suggested that a generous works programme of various character should be carried out through the length and breadth of Canada, to be financed upon the national credit. I suggested with no many essential things to be done there was no reason for unemployment in Canada; other than the unemployed, and that in my opinion we could carry on necessary and desirable undertakings without unduly expanding our credit," the Premier said.

CREDIT EXPANSION

"It has been my opinion right along and is my opinion now that we can expand our internal credit to carry out the objects which we have outlined without incurring our external credit. In fact, I think it would help our external credit."

"I suggested that it was the policy of the Liberal party to provide work and wages rather than the adoption of a policy of relief, and that is still the policy of the Liberal party. We have gone as far as it has been possible to go with the means at our disposal," Premier Pattullo continued.

B.C. REQUESTS

British Columbia aims at the November Federal conference, the Premier intimated, would include requests for a Royal Commission on "better terms," redefinition of jurisdiction over sources of revenue and taxation and "the allocation of sufficient revenues to enable the Province and the municipalities to adequately carry on," refunding of capital obligations at lower interest rates; restatement of Federal and provincial fields in social and welfare legislation; and agreement as to labor laws.

"Capital for the development of natural resources and public works should be made available to the provinces at lowest possible cost," continued the Premier. "The Dominion is in control of currency and banking. I repeat now that were it not in a much less favorable position than is this province under similar conditions. The credit of the country should be used to a reasonable degree to meet the situation. I trust that no one will interpret this statement as meaning uncontrolled inflation, because it means nothing of the kind. It simply means a sensible and rational use of our credit."

TARIFFS AND FREIGHTS

The Province would ask again that the Pacific Great Eastern Railway be absorbed into the Canadian National system, the Premier continued. Other requests would be for tariff adjustment to remove unfair impositions; adjustment of freight rates more satisfactory to the West; and a permanent policy on unemployment.

Turning to the by-elections pending in two provincial ridings, the Premier said: "At the time of the resignations of Messrs. Manson and McGeer, I stated that it was the intention of the Government to hold by-elections in time for these constituencies to have representation at the approaching session of the Legislature in February."

TO CONTEST SEATS

Owing to necessity for revision of provincial voters' lists in the two ridings, it was not possible to state when the by-elections would be held, but the Government proposed to contest both vacant seats and to put forth every effort to elect supporters of the ministry, he added. "I would very much like to receive the endorsement of these constituencies, not that they are necessary to preserve the life of the Government, but in order to indicate to the other provinces and to the Dominion that the people of British Columbia are behind this administration in its efforts to improve Dominion and provincial relationships," the Premier said.

Turning to what he said was unwarranted criticism of himself by the newspapers in Vancouver, the Premier said in part:

"I believe that the press of this province as a whole compares favorably with the press generally, but a situation exists in respect of two of our largest newspapers which in my opinion is not for the good of the people. I believe that The Province and The Sun newspapers have by their attitude created Socialist and Communist sentiment."

"The Sun and The Province newspapers attack me and have endeavored to lead the public to believe that I was personally a handicap to the Federal Liberal candidates in the recent election. An examination would not appear to indicate anything of the kind," the Premier continued.

"The time has come when a stop must be put to this kind of propaganda," Premier Pattullo resumed, after discussing the results of the election in Mainland areas.

"I see no reason why the Government should submit to deliberate misrepresentation and falsification. A Government should welcome legitimate criticism and helpful suggestion, but not a continual barrage of falsification, and it is in the public interests that misrepresentation and falsification should no longer be permitted," he continued.

In closing, the Premier said: "Notwithstanding any attacks that may be made upon me, I want it clearly understood that I propose to stay with the job I have in hand. I know what the problems of this province are as well as any other man in the province. At least I certainly should, considering the time that I have been in public life, and I propose to stay with the job until our work is completed."

Building Split and Moved

In an unusual engineering feat, workmen are preparing to move a 500-ton section of the Commercial Exchange Building at Eighth and Olive Streets, Los Angeles, back five feet on Olive Street. Arrow points to the section cut away down the full length of the structure after seventy-seven days of work. By using 1,400 jacks, the workers are moving the two sections together to make room for the widening of Olive Street. Then the building will be patched together again.

TRUCK DRIVER SENT TO JAIL

Chinese Operator of Vehicle Which Knocked Down Mrs. Longley Found Guilty

Jo, a Chinese driver of a truck, which had been bought for $15 and which knocked down Mrs. Clarence R. Longley, of 711 Kings Road, at the corner of Fisgard and Douglas Streets on October 11, will have to spend a month in jail. He was convicted by Magistrate Jay in the city police court yesterday for having failed to remain at the scene of the accident for the purpose of rendering any aid possible and of giving any information to the police.

M. B. Jackson, K.C., who appeared for the accused, contended that the case was not as serious as was represented. The accused went into the witness box and testified that he had got out of the truck and that his companion, Ngon Kow, had also got out and assisted in extricating the woman from under the vehicle.

Neither of them spoke English and Ngon Kow stated he had told the accused after the accident to go to his place on Caledonia Avenue and telephone for Joe Wong to come and, as interpreter, make out a report covering the case for the police. There was some trouble getting the interpreter, who was at home, but who arrived later in the evening and at once came in.

APPEARED SUDDENLY

Mrs. Longley, in her evidence, said she was walking along Douglas Street about 8:30 p.m., coming towards the city. There was no traffic about as she and her husband started across Fisgard Street. She had been attracted to a coat in a store window and called her husband's attention to it, when a truck driven by the accused struck them. She was knocked down and went under the vehicle. She caught the bumper to save herself.

J. W. B. Kerr and Thomas Connell were in the vicinity and assisted in lifting up the front wheel of the truck and extricating Mrs. Longley.

Dr. W. J. Endicott, who had attended Mrs. Longley, described the injuries. There were no bones fractured as far as could be ascertained. She was suffering from pain in the back, on the side and the left leg.

CONFLICT OF EVIDENCE

Witnesses for the prosecution testified that the driver of the truck had no lights when the machine was seen by them. Accused explained that he had his lights burning earlier, but he had put on the brakes when he saw trouble coming and turned out the lights, also. Witnesses for the prosecution also said the driver never left the seat in the truck, which contradicted the evidence of the two Chinese.

Constable Alex Nichol, who had brought the accused to the police station after the accident, testified that he found him at the home of Ngon Kow and that he was satisfied he was doing all possible to get an interpreter and have his report made out.

The accused admitted he had no driver's licence. He was just learning to drive the truck.

Magistrate Jay said that there was no doubt as to the violation of the law. The accused had undertaken to drive a car and in doing so must be prepared to comply with all the regulations governing that duty. He was satisfied that the accused had not tried to escape, and in view of all the circumstances, he imposed a term of one month.

At the Theatres

OPERA STAR IS IN CINEMA ROLE

Nino Martini Given Lead in "Here's to Romance," Now Showing at Capitol Theatre

Fresh from radio triumphs and a sensational career in opera and concert performances, Nino Martini arrives on the screen of the Capitol Theatre today, where his "Here's to Romance" opens, to prove that he is not only the greatest tenor in a decade, but a magnetic screen personality whose acting skill, extreme good looks and vital personality bid fair to make him an overnight sensation.

In the gala cast which supports Martini are Genevieve Tobin, Anita Louise, Madame Ernestine Schumann-Heink, Reginald Denny, Maria Gambarelli and Vicente Escudero. The hectic career of Martini, who as a young singer is sent to Paris by Miss Tobin, is the principal theme of the picture plot. He falls in love with Anita Louise, is divided between his loyalty to Miss Tobin and his new love.

Later he makes a debut that proves a terrible fiasco, and returns to New York. He is a failure until Miss Louise comes to his rescue, wins him a chance with the Metropolitan and finally consents to marry him—without revealing that she is the one who brought him success.

CHORAL GROUPS WILL GIVE JOINT CONCERT

Sir Hubert Parry was no inspired by Milton's lovely poem "Bliss Be it," that he set it to music and dedicated it to Sir Charles Villiers Stanford and the Bach Choir who first performed this work in 1887. The poem described the joys of the departed and Milton very vividly pictures the celestial city with the harpers and saints singing in praise of the Lord, the music is entrancingly lovely and full of thrill. In hearing it one is struck with the majesty of the work and how Milton has every detail of the picture in his mind. Parry has caught the spirit in the music and has written a fine choral work. This and many other fine works will be rendered by the combined Schubert Club and Meistersingers at the choral recital to be given in the First United Church Friday evening.

DOMINION Richard Tauber has a magnificent reputation as a tenor and his concerts all over the country were packed and his recording discs sold by the thousands. Yet when he appeared in "Blossom Time," his first English film, he was acclaimed overnight as one of the foremost singing film stars in the world. Tauber's latest film, "Heart's Desire," now at the Dominion Theatre, has a much more powerful and human story than "Blossom Time."

MAKE FILMS FOR EDUCATION WORK

At a recent session of the local Anti-Vivisection Society's directors, attention was drawn to the correspondence between the secretary and Edwin Carewe, well-known Hollywood producer, who is to co-operate in the filming of wholesome educational pictures especially adapted for churches, schools and organizations, there being a great public demand for this type of picture.

Dr. A. S. Millard, who reported vivisection being carried on in Shanghai Christian University, still urges definite action to prohibit this practice, it being unethical and opposed to Christian principles. The matter is being taken up in England, Canada, United States and other parts, objection being made to supporting missionary organizations.

Objections have been lodged with a moving picture producer in California who, it is alleged, is expecting to show a film based on the life and work of Louis Pasteur, well-known vivisector.

During the Federal election, the opinions of local candidates on vivisection were sought and those forthcoming were sent to all members of the society. Deep regret was expressed by the society at the passing of the Rt. Hon. Arthur Henderson, a pronounced opponent of vivisection and parliamentary supporter in the House of Commons.

The first house meeting of the Winter series is to be held at the home of Miss Kille, 357 Southgate Street, on Tuesday, at 8:30 p.m., when different members will speak. All persons interested are invited to be present.

Mr. H. Fraser occupied the chair at the meeting of the board.

That Body of Yours

(By James W. Barton, M.D.)

YOUR FOOD AND YOUR AGE

A certain amount of food must be eaten every day whether you are lying flat on your back indoors or cutting wood all day outdoors. Your body demands a certain amount of food to keep your heart beating, your lungs breathing, your blood flowing, body tissues built up and wastes carried away, and for all the other body processes.

But after enough food has been eaten to supply these body needs, the amount of food needed thereafter depends upon the amount of work you do indoors or outdoors. If you are a young man or woman working outdoors you will need three times as much food as when you are lying quietly indoors. And this food must be eaten if you are to maintain health and strength.

If you are middle-aged, work at a desk or about the house, you will need about twice as much food as if you are doing no work.

If you are old, don't get out much, then you need very little more food than if you were doing nothing.

Apparently there is no need to earn young or old people about eating too much—the young seem to use up all they eat and the old seem to cut down on their food intake anyway.

It is the middle-aged individual—the business man who does a physical work or exercise, and the housewife who has a small home, or who has servants doing the housework—who eat too much food. The man eats too much because he still has his appetite and his desire in which to eat his meals, and the woman because she eats what and when she likes—at home or at clubs.

The result of course is overweight in the majority of cases and overweight brings on many of the troubles of middle-age—diabetes, high blood pressure, sluggish liver, overworked kidneys and lessening of the "reserve" power of the heart.

You can readily understand that it is not only more food is eaten than is needed, but more food eaten than your body can handle properly, something is likely to happen to the various organs and tissues of the body.

Middle age is the "critical" age from the food standpoint as too much food is likely to cause mental and physical sluggishness.

IT CAN BE DONE!

later they became lost in a blinding snowstorm and dense fog.

"I was trying to get altitude, and was flying at cruising speed when the plane struck," Captain Walker said. "We knocked off some tree tops and branches, which broke our fall, and the plane plunged nose-first into the ground. Our safety belts kept us in the ship."

Captain Walker said he jumped to the ground and then pulled Goldstein, somewhat stunned, from the ship, which had burst into flames.

"Walker's able maneuvering of the ship undoubtedly saved our lives," Goldstein declared. "He muddled the plane down far enough to break its fall against the trees."

AMATEUR SHOW GREAT SUCCESS

Programme, Ranging From Sublime to Ridiculous, Captures Audience

A generous supply of comedy, a little bit of classic, together with the ever-popular dance and juvenile numbers made the first offering of Slim Hunter's amateur talent at the Empire Theatre last night a rollicking success.

The Inner Harbor Show Boat has been closed for the season, but it was revived in a different setting at the Empire under the able direction of Slim Hunter, his Hill Billies, assisting artists, and competitive amateur talent.

POPULAR VOTE

Already plans for the next amateur night are being made, and an audition of the next lot of contestants will be given on Monday at a time and place to be announced later. The winners of last night's contest will be made known today, after the popular vote has been counted.

Opening with "The Rustlers" in a "Cowboy's Dream," which led into the Amateur Show's theme song, the programme went from act to act of a potpourri character that would please the most discriminating taste. The programme has a character of its own. Its informality and general rollicking style carried the show forward at a swift pace. At no time did it lag. Several classical numbers were introduced and at first one doubted whether they would fit into the programme, but the transition from the ridiculous to the sublime was so quick that the contest was an instant success as the spontaneous applause indicated at the close of each number.

THE CONTENTANTS

The contestants who contributed to the programme were: The Finn Sisters, in a dance number; T. W. Marks, vocal solo; Louis Russell, song and dance number; Dorothy Blakeney, vocal solo; Phillip Smith, accordion selection; Enid Middleton, vocal solo; Barbara Wilson and G. Aldous, patrons, Mrs. R. W. Mayhew, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Spencer, Miss Kathleen Agnew, Mrs. Walter Nichol, Dr. and Mrs. Hermann Robertson, Mrs. Charles Wilson, Dr. G. M. Weir and Mrs. Thorpe Double.

The first part of the evening was taken up with the presentation of a dramatic, "Sequel," by P. Wilde. The cast comprised Faith Cummins, Arthur Groves, Orrin Brantford, Gil Fraser and Robert Tysoe. There was also a short musical programme, the numbers including Miss Marjorie Benson's singing of "I Love Myself," Miss Cullum's song, "Mad About the Boy," a piano solo, "Waltz" (Chopin), played by Grant Stewart, and a Spanish dance, presented by Babe Penneck and Thelma Ackerman.

Another pleasing incident of the occasion was the presentation to Major Bullock-Webster of a handsome cigarette box and humidor, the president, E. Simmons, in presenting the gift, expressing the society's deep appreciation of past services. Major Bullock-Webster introduced the new director, Mr. Legge-Willis.

Announcement was made that the choosing of the cast for the next play to be presented by the society would take place at a meeting to be held at St. Ann's Hall on Friday, October 25.

Humble Task Noble If Done in Proper Spirit of Service

Mrs. D. M. Duncan Gives Encouraging Talk to
Well-Attended Meeting of St. Mary's Guild—
Cathedral Guild Delegates Are Welcomed

THE nobility of the humble task, if performed in a spirit of service to God and one's fellow-man, was emphasized in the very apt talk given by Mrs. D. M. Duncan, principal of St. Margaret's School, at the meeting yesterday afternoon of St. Mary's Parish Guild.

"Service brings together two things—the ideal and the sometimes such, a cathedral was more than a mere building, it was a dream fulfilled. To illustrate further what she meant by the nobility of the humble task if performed in a spirit of service, the speaker noted the now-familiar lines of the kitchenmaid's prayer: 'Lord of all pots and pans and things' Helen Keller had expressed something of the same idea in saying: 'I long to do great and noble tasks, but it is my duty and my joy to do humble tasks as if they were great and noble.' It was undoubtedly true that women in such groups as the church guild found themselves brought nearer to God in the humble tasks rather than in the exalted tasks. Service of a willing kind in the service of the Tabernacle was not tiring, although it might require patience, ingenuity and courage.

Women church workers who spent their time making wreaths for Christmas decorations taking charge of booths or making articles for church bazaars, conducting rummage sales, might think this unimportant and inglorious work. In speaking of this, Mrs. Duncan, had in mind special instances when the proceeds of such affairs had been devoted to the buying of hymn-books, the replacing of worn-out vestments for the choir, or the beautifying of the house of God, the making comely of the meeting place of the congregation. This was surely worthy work, yet so often one lost sight of the glory of the end in the detail.

"To praise God at a rummage sale sounds ridiculous when one says it, to praise God by glorifying the house of God exalts the humble task into a thing of beauty," she noted. Recently a bride's house in Victoria recalled with glowing face the achievement as, stone by stone, the women watched the growth of the new cathedral toward which they directed so many of their

A Charming Nelson Bride

Formerly Dorothea Graham, daughter of Venerable Archdeacon F. H. Graham and Mrs. Graham, of Nelson, whose marriage took place recently, was a frequent visitor to Victoria.

Wedding of Nelson Girl Is Of Interest to Victorians

Miss Dorothea Graham, Popular Visitor Here,
Becomes Bride of Mr. John H. S. Winter at Church Ceremony—To Reside in Spokane

NELSON, Oct. 22.—St. Saviour's gold chrysanthemums, while the Pro-Cathedral, adorned with profusions of vari-colored Autumn flowers, consisting of dahlias, golden rod, gladioli, asters and Autumn foliage, was the scene, Saturday afternoon, of a very pretty wedding when Miss Dorothea Graham, second daughter of Venerable Archdeacon F. H. Graham and Mrs. Graham, became the bride of John H. S. Winter, younger son of Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Winter, of Victoria, the bride's father, Venerable Archdeacon F. H. Graham, officiating. The bride's mother, Mrs. Fred H. Graham, was very attractive in a gown of black chiffon and spider lace and shoulder bouquet of Talisman roses, and black velvet hat to match. The best man pointed over the back of the hand and caught in front with a rhinestone buckle. She wore an old family veil of Carrickmacross lace caught at either side with a cluster of orange blossoms and white gloves with white and silver slippers to match. Her bridal bouquet consisting of Johanna Hill roses, Bourdieu and Swanson and Adiantum fern. The matron of honor, the bride's sister, Mrs. James Bryden, of Trail, was very beautiful. Those acting as ushers were Alan Spear and Howard Carruthers, of Trail, and Thomas Johnston, of Nelson. During the signing of the register, "Love—Consecration" was beautifully rendered by Mrs. R. H. Townsend. After the ceremony a large reception was held at the home of Mrs. Winter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Winter left by motor for Spokane immediately after the reception and will take up residence at the Big Missouri.

Well-Known Visitor Is at The Empress

Arriving from Tacoma with her car and accompanied by Miss Virginia Plummer, of Centralia, Mrs. Edna D. Bakes has returned here and is a guest at the Empress Hotel. A charming and frequent visitor through years, Mrs. Bakes is one of those who appreciates what she calls "unspoiled Victoria." She shops for china here—Spode her specialty—and enjoys the countryside generally.

An ardent yachtswoman all her life, Mrs. Bakes has often made the trip North and into Victoria harbor aboard The Margaret, a fifty foot cruiser type, which she has recently sold.

With the rest of Tacoma, she is feeling deeply regretful about the destruction by fire of the old Tacoma Hotel. Colorful recollections of her own girlhood, when she used to race her pony along the street where it stood and the "best" houses were that neighborhood, are part of her memories of that historic building.

MARLBOROUGH—ON-HUDSON N.Y., Oct. 22 (P).—Mrs. Bertha M. Goudy, sole compositor and typesetter for the books issued by the Village Press, owned and operated by her husband, Frederick W. While Mr. Goudy was becoming widely known as a designer of new type-faces, Mrs. Goudy achieved a reputation of her own among printers and bibliophiles for the perfection of her work in composing and setting type.

His shape reminded Peter at once of the penguin up at the farm. His back was greyish-brown, varying to bluish-grey. The crown and upper parts of his head were bluish-grey. His breast was reddish-buff shading down into a soft buff. His bill was black and his feet red. The middle feathers of his tail were longest and of the color of his back. The other feathers were slaty-grey with little black bands and tipped with white. On his wings were a few scattered black spots, and there was one under each ear. But it was the sides of his neck which were the most wonderful part of Mourners. "Hardly, Peter, hardly," cooed Mourners in the softest of voices. "I'm picking up a little gravel for my digestion." He picked up a tiny pebble and swallowed it.

"Well of all things," cried Peter. "You must be crazy." The idea of

Rest Haven Sanitarium Aided by Entertainment

Rest Haven Sanitarium and Hospital, Sidney, was the scene of a pleasing event on Monday evening when friends from near and far gave the institution a shower of linen, hospital apparel and other useful gifts. In addition to the shower, Carl Horthy, tenor soloist, who has received recognition in the music centres of Europe, where he has studied, gave a recital of vocal numbers. The affair was arranged by an energetic committee, consisting of Mrs. B. Deacon (convenor), Mrs. Stanley Brethour and Mrs. Philip Brethour.

MORE THAN 200 PRESENT
Guests, numbering over 200, were received by Mrs. Courser, superintendent of nurses, and by Mrs. Stanley Brethour. All seats in the spacious lounge room were soon filled, and it was necessary to provide seating accommodation in the hallways. The lounge room was beautifully decorated with flowers, autumn berries and ferns. The gifts were assembled on tables decorated with sheaves of gladioli and ferns.

F. J. Baker, the chairman, in a few words, explained the purpose of the gathering, and introduced Carl Horthy, who is well known in the district, where he spent his boyhood.

THE PROGRAMME
Mr. Horthy's programme was as follows:

Italian group: "Gloria al Sole dal Gange" (Scarlati), "Vaghiissima sembianza" (Donaudy), "Serenade from 'Pagliacci'" (Leoncavallo).

English group: "Susette" (Denby).

Little Stories for Bedtime
A Queer Breakfast

A long lane leads from Farmer Brown's barnyard down to his cornfield on the Green Meadows. Very early in the morning, Peter Rabbit took it into his funny little head to run down that long lane. Now at a certain place beside that long lane was a gravelly bank into which Farmer Brown had dug for gravel on the road to the highway near his house. As Peter was scampering past this place he caught sight of someone very busy in that gravel pit. Peter stopped short, then sat up to stare.

It was Mourners the Dove whom Peter and his body was a little bigger than that of Welcome Robin, but his slender neck longer tail and wings made him appear considerably blinder. His shape reminded Peter at once of the penguin up at the farm. His back was greyish-brown, varying to bluish-grey. The crown and upper parts of his head were bluish-grey. "Well of all things," cried Peter. "You must be crazy." The idea of thinking that gravel is going to help your digestion. I should say the chances are that it will work just the other way."

Mourners laughed. "I haven't the least doubt that a breakfast of gravel would give you the worst kind of a stomach-ache," said he. "But you are you and I am I, and there is all the difference in the world I eat grain and hard seeds which I have to swallow whole. One part of my stomach is called a gizzard and its duty is to grind and crush my food so that it may be digested. Tiny pebbles and gravel help grind food and so aid digestion."

"Oh," said Peter.

ARMOUR AND REVOLTA REACH P.G.A. GOLF FINAL

Veteran Shotmaker Puts Out Watrous; Zimmerman Beaten

March Into Last Bracket by Close Victories Scored During Heavy Mist and Chilling Winds— Armour Wins, 2 and 1, and Revolta, 4 and 3—Will Meet Today for Title

By WHITNEY MARTIN
Associated Press Sports Writer
TWIN HILLS GOLF COURSE, OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 22 (AP).—Tommy Armour, Medinah, Ill., the grizzled campaigner who has won virtually every major golf tournament there is to win, and Johnny Revolta, twenty-four-year-old marksman from Milwaukee, Wis., shot their way through mist and chilling winds, today to the finals of the P.G.A. national tournament.

Armour quelled a belated uprising by the stocky Al Watrous, Birmingham, Mich., to win on the thirty-fifth green, 2 and 1, as Revolta turned back the challenge of serious Al Zimmerman, Portland, Ore., old marksman from Milwaukee, 4 and 3.

The gaunt, silver-haired Armour, who, beset by Woods, traps and guile at one time in his match, remarked: "I could play better golf

Woods Rallies To Earn Draw Against Payne

SEATTLE, Oct. 22 (AP).—Weathering a knockdown in the fifth round, Henry Woods, Yakima, negro, fought back to a draw and partial revenge against Cecil Payne, Louisville, Ky., lightweight, in a ten-round boxing battle here tonight. Woods weighed 137 and Payne 134½ pounds.

three-under-par golf through 102 holes of match play prior to today, and who yesterday poured rain and birds at Paul Runyan until the little champion dropped, 3 and 2, today found the combination of Revolta's steady play and the variable elements more than he could master.

ELEMENTS TOUGH
Heavy, stinging mist, driven by a chill north wind, saturated greens and fairways this morning and made the small gallery and the players go hunching around the course in bundled discomfort. The mist disappeared toward noon, but the wind increased in velocity, making long shots into its teeth almost double back.

The frail-appearing Zimmerman was away to a disastrous start this morning, losing the first three holes. Carding a 38 going out, he was three down at the turn, as Revolta, unruly black locks flying in the breeze, was out in a pair 35. Zimmerman made a determined rally at the start of the evening nine to even the count on the fourteenth green with a birdie, but he dropped the fifteenth and thereafter always trailed. Five down at the twenty-seventh hole in the afternoon, he made a last desperate effort to turn the tide, but Revolta continued his unperurbed way to close out the match on the thirty-third green.

He was voted 75 points as against 69 for Dizzy Dean of St. Louis Cardinals, who ran second in voting. Dean won the 1934 award.

Arky Vaughan, Pittsburgh shortstop, was third with 45 points. Billy Herman, another Cub, ran fourth with 38 points.

Re-elected Head of Burnside Club—Stan Hawkins Also Returned

Returned to office as president for his fifth consecutive term, A. W. Complete slate of new officers follows: John Paterson, honorary president; C. Goodwin, honorary vice-president; A. W. Stewart, president; E. Myers, vice-president; S. C. Hawkins, secretary; W. Tupper, treasurer; F. Harman, captain; J. W. Mercer, J. P. Hibben, W. Laidlaw, W. W. Davidson, A. A. Pass, W. Washington, C. Goodwin, T. Deverson, W. Merton and G. Little with P. The regret of the meeting was voiced when E. W. Meadows, popular treasurer for the past four years, tendered his resignation. Due to business reasons, Mr. Meadows was forced to sever his connection with the club as an official. The new executive will hold its first meeting Monday, November 4, at 8 o'clock, in Hampton Road Hall. Committees for the year will be named.

Various annual statements were rendered at the meeting, all of which were adopted as more than satisfactory.

Promoter Jacobs Arranging Bouts For the Garden

Making Plans for Two Fights With Joe Louis Involved—Paulino Uzcudun Is First Opponent On December 6—Other Mix in March—Title Clash Is Planned Next Summer

By EDWARD J. NEIL
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK, Oct. 22 (AP).—Mike Jacobs, boxing's new Tex Rickard, stepped today into Madison Square Garden, the arena the original Rickard built, with an agreement for the promotion of two matches involving Joe Louis, paying the way at the same time for a heavyweight title match between the Negro and Jimmy Braddock some time next Summer.

While no mention of a title match was made in the formal announcement that Jacobs and the Garden would jointly promote a charity bout between Louis and Paulino Uzcudun early in December, and a second involving Louis in March, it was taken for granted that peace has been generally declared between New York's two big boxing rivals.

ONLY TWO MATCHES
Although the merger is for only two matches, and President John Kilpatrick of the Garden vigorously insisted there had been no change in policy, it was likewise indicated that the footloose Jacobs thus gained in the indoor field would lead later to a broader agreement, possibly involving the year round boxing privileges at the Garden.

The Garden will receive 12½ per cent of the profit for both matches. The match between Louis and Uzcudun, hammered-down Spanish veteran, probably will be staged December 6 for the benefit of a Christmas fund. No opponent has been selected for the March engagement.

RETURNS HOME WITH TROPHIES

R. G. Pickrell, of Winnipeg Police Force, Back in Canada After Successful Revolver Invasion

MONTREAL, Oct. 22.—Canada's lone pistol and revolver-shooting representative at the Biely shoot, in private life Constable R. G. Pickrell, of the Canadian National Railways police force at Winnipeg, returned to Canada today with a load of medals, cups and badges and the official designation of world's master shot, by virtue of winning a gold badge in the Maitre Thieur world's pistol competition at Rome.

Overseas Pickrell won the Scottish pistol championship at St. Andrews; the British open championship at Birmingham, England, when he established records in the three stages of the match; registered a "possible" in the Olympic world's championship at Rome; qualified in the Maitre Thieur match at Rome, winning a gold badge with eleven points to spare, and lost the Biely championship by only one point.

His shooting activities were punctuated here and there by bad luck. While taking part in the Biely revolver aggregate shooting, Pickrell had his wrist and shoulder injured. Walking from the camp to the postoffice one night, he was knocked down by a motorcycle, and because of his injuries had to drop out of the revolver competition. Recovering sufficiently to take part in the pistol finals, however, he was within one point of victory, the winner being a shot whom Pickrell had previously defeated in the British open at Birmingham.

SMALL MONTANA FACES WOLGAST

OAKLAND, Oct. 22 (AP).—Small Montana's claim to the flyweight championship of the world was a little shaky today, as he headed for Hollywood to meet Midget Wolgast in a non-title bout. The Filipino flash ran up against a Tartar here in his ten-round bout with Tuffy Pierpont, a rugged Oakland boy, who knocked Montana out of the ring in the second round and floored him again in the fourth, but received only a draw for his efforts.

Utility and Rail Shares Gain at New York Mart

NEW YORK, Oct. 22 (AP)—Profiting from a general recovery in the stock market today, utility and rail shares were among the most active and gained in value. The close of the day's trading was a gain of 1.14 points for the Standard and Poors 481 index.

The close of the day's trading was a gain of 1.14 points for the Standard and Poors 481 index. The close of the day's trading was a gain of 1.14 points for the Standard and Poors 481 index.

Many active industrials and specialties dropped 1 to 2 points. Dealers slowed considerably later in the day's trading in the stock exchange to 2,840,000 shares.

A gain of 2.4 of a point in the Associated Press average of sixty stocks at 51.9 brought that compilation to a new 1935 peak. The fifteen rail lifts of 5 of a point, while the thirty industrials were down 2 of a point.

Neither the markets nor the domestic and foreign news appeared to offer much basis for the early profit taking, and observers felt that technical factors, and the perhaps too rapid advance of some leaders recently was at the bottom of the disturbance.

The buying in utilities, market quarters reported seemed to be based on the feeling the group had not been keeping pace with the rest of the market recently.

Corporate bonds followed the general pattern of the stock market, displaying steadiness in the rail and utility section and irregularity elsewhere.

U.S. Government closing quotations were 5-32nds lower to 10-32nds higher. Italian issues recovered sharply and other foreign bonds were steady.

FLIGHT... by W. D. TIPTON and J. H. MASON

DESIGNERS have toyed with the idea of the flying wing for years. The idea is to obtain lift from the structure carrying the cargo which normally offers nothing but head resistance.

To develop this idea, Vincent Burnelli, American proponent of the flying wing idea, has built his latest creation, a transport plane in which the cabin takes the form of a true wing section. The true flying wing would be a continuous fuselage section laterally, diminishing in size towards the wing tips. However, if built to the right proportions, the span of such a wing would be such as to produce an airplane much larger than commercial operations could justify today. Hence it will be noted that the compromise has been made in that thinner wings have been attached to the top of the cabin in a normal manner. Considerable lift is thus obtained from the hitherto parasitic fuselage and this lift thereby obtained results in the elimination of a certain amount of wing area. The cabin, so created, is wide and roomy and the engines may be mounted directly on the nose of the cabin instead of on the wings. Here, mechanics can get at the engines and make minor repairs in flight.

THE TUTTS... By Crawford Young

How It Started

By JEAN NEWTON

YAP
Yap, in connection with a dog, is perfectly proper usage. Quite contemptuously, however, is the implication when it is applied to a human being, as in the imperative "Stop yapping!" or in describing somebody constantly talking as "He is always yapping."

The word comes to us from the Icelandic "jalpa," meaning a yelping cur. In fact, yap is akin to yelp.

In origin "yap" is undoubtedly imitative or echoic, being the sound made by a canine animal calling for attention.

One of its earliest recorded appearances in the English language

FEATHER IN HER HAT—

by JULIE ARNE MOORE

CHAPTER XV

It developed that Mollie herself was responsible for the new interest of the police in Fuhrman, Wells' death. She had been in New York when she read the suicide stories and had promptly decided that somewhere, somehow, the processes of justice had gone astray.

On the face of the evidence reported in the newspapers, the police were justified in recording the case as a suicide. But they could have known nothing of the telephone call she had received, else they would have called her back to Washington immediately. Not having heard about that call, they had missed the most important piece of testimony in the whole case. When she had received the call falsely reporting Fuhrman had been murdered, Fuhrman was standing directly behind her and could not, therefore, have been the speaker.

Mollie had almost decided to go back to Washington at once, but while she debated the wisdom of this, Lee and Ann had disappeared on their flight from Elmville and it was not until two weeks after her return to the capital that she finally walked into police headquarters, asked for a high police officer she had known for several years and told him her story. When she had finished, the officer said:

"We'll have to look around for an accomplice."

Mollie was amused. "You still think Fuhrman killed himself?"

"If I'd seen it, I couldn't be any surer, Miss Winslow. . . . There's one thing you don't know. We discovered a diary in Wells' effects. He planned originally to wipe out the entire Runbrecker family. Apparently he changed his mind and decided to kill himself to throw suspicion on the Senator. If you know Wells didn't make that first phone call, then somebody else is involved and we'd like to know who it is. But an accomplice is the most you can hope for. Beyond the shadow of a doubt, Wells ended his own life. If you learn anything of importance, I'll appreciate it if you will get in touch with me."

The weeks passed and Mollie heard nothing more about the case. Her investigation. Her work at the Globe was keeping her very busy. Bill Hudson had developed a curious case of melancholia, avoided the crowd, sulked when cornered and refused to offer any explanation of his strange conduct. The case between Carl and Rita had developed to the point where trouble threatened unless he made a clean cut with Selma, which, until now, he had carefully refrained from doing.

And Ann—

"The one member of the gang I'd expect to keep her life free of complications," Mollie told herself in one of her reflective moods, "and she turns out to be the most vexing problem I have."

No sooner had Ann left the hospital after letting her slip the engagement ring on her finger than she had taken it off and tucked it away in her purse. She had sworn Rita to secrecy, knowing that Lee would say nothing until he had heard it from other quarters, and for three weeks Rita had gone around in a fever of suppressed excitement. Then one night when Ann had gone to the library, she whispered it to Mollie, and Mollie, in a glow of happiness, spent two hours hunting for Bill and finally located him in a place called "The Parakeet."

Bill had had more drinks than he cared to admit. Mollie never drank liquor and Bill never insisted. He ordered her a bottle of ginger ale and listened to her jubilant announcement with as little evident emotion as if she had informed him of some change in the weather.

"Great. . . .," he said. "Yes, all that's fine. That's perfectly splendid."

Bill's drawn words were spoken in a lifeless voice. It was not the liquor he had drunk. It was as if those words had been forced out against an almost overpowering revulsion of feeling.

It was a thoroughly sobered Mollie who said after a troubled silence: "I wish you could tell me what it is, Bill. You can't go on this way indefinitely. You're eating your heart out about something and if you don't get it off your chest, you'll turn up in the morgue one of these days."

He looked it, too. He was thin, there was telltale patches under his eyes, and much of his usual fine color had gone.

"I've thought about the morgue angle," Bill said, gravely. "Some people can do that sort of thing. I can't."

"And you won't tell me what's wrong so I can help?"

Bill's head moved slowly. "Nothing to tell, Mollie."

And then, perhaps to get her off the subject, Bill told Mollie about Selma's professed confession about her little joke at the reflecting pool. "Maybe that's what's eating on me," he said with a wry grin. "The Runbrecker family is out to hang a charge murder on some poor sap. Perhaps I'm worrying myself to death for fear she'll hang it on me."

Mollie was careful not to let Bill see that she attached any importance to Selma's story.

The next evening Mollie casually picked up Ann's purse and began to dig around in it. "What, no lipstick?" she said, still probing. Instantly Ann started toward her, but by that time Mollie had found the ring and was holding the diamond up against the light.

"Darling," said Mollie, "engagement rings are made to be worn, not buried in purses. And suddenly she had caught Ann in her arms and kissed her, and since there was nothing else she could do, Ann admitted Lee Monday was the man."

"I don't want to stir up a lot of publicity," she said plaintively. "I wear it when I go to the hospital. I wear it when I go to bed. Later, perhaps."

Weeks later, when Ann disappeared from the apartment, and Rita had reported that Ann was at work as usual but asked that no one try to get in touch with her, Mollie guessed immediately that Ann and Lee had quarreled. She went straight to the hospital to talk with Lee.

"I don't know what happened," Lee lied. "She just walked in, handed me the ring and walked out."

"I wish you could get hold of her, Mollie."

Mollie shook her head. "I can't. I wouldn't, Lee. And you mustn't. We've got to let her work it out for herself. When you get out of here, my advice is that you go on back to California and give her time to get her mind clear of whatever it is that's bothering her. Then, if you really love her, you can come back and make a fresh start."

"If I really love her?" Lee said.

So Mollie, the self-appointed mother of a difficult brood, continued to worry over her favorite chick—concern for Ann had momentarily lessened her anxiety over the increasingly troublesome Rita, Carl-Selma triangle—and it was not until the week after Thanksgiving that she went back to police headquarters. Without divulging her source of information, she repeated what Bill had told her.

"Selma Runbrecker is a rather peculiar girl," she told the officer, "and it isn't conceivable that she would have manufactured the whole story. But if it happens that she did plan such a thrill for her guests and did put the dummy 'corpse' in the reflecting pool—"

"Exactly," said the officer, nodding, following her reasoning. "A very important piece of information, Miss Winslow. I'll have a talk with all the Runbreckers tomorrow, including the Senator."

Next police headquarters Mollie went by Bill's office and, to her frank astonishment, found him in "I want you to come up to the apartment tonight, Bill. No nonsense now; this is important. . . . Let's have a phone a minute, please. "She called Selma Runbrecker and when Selma demurred, she said, quietly, 'be there about eight, honey, or wish you had. And I'm depending on you to get hold of Carl and bring him along.'"

And into this sober gathering in Mollie's apartment came Ann, smiling but uneasy and, perhaps for the first time in her life, painfully self-conscious.

By tacit agreement, no one mentioned Lee's name in Ann's presence, and though she had regretted a thousand times she had not followed Mrs. Monday into Lee's room and given her an opportunity to rescind her arbitrary judgment, Ann tried, and in a degree succeeded, in restricting Lee to a tiny corner of her mind. Sometimes, however, he beat his way out of the narrow limits she assigned and earnestly protested the injustice of what she had done; and once she dreamed they were again lying on the grass beside the little stream at the foot of the mountain on which they had cracked up, and she awoke to find her pillow wet with tears.

November was torn from the calendar and early in December life had settled down to a quiet routine. If there had been any developments in the police probe, not even Mollie had been apprised of the fact. Rita was going out with Carl as often as he could get away from Selma; and when he could get away, he usually managed to bring Selma by the apartment for a few minutes. Ann did not like these visits, and Mollie told Carl bluntly she preferred that he either come alone or bring Selma up for the entire evening. "These little pop visits are bad for our nerves," she said. "Stay awhile and we get used to the feeling of holding on to a live wire."

When, two weeks after her return to the apartment, Ann had not put in another appearance, Ann spoke to Mollie about it.

"He's trying to drink himself to death about something," Mollie said, grimly. "It's one of his women, I suppose, but I've never before seen him down and out the way he is now."

The next evening Ann went to Bill's office. A man was busy there; he had no idea where Bill could be found.

"It's terribly important," Ann said in a thin, earnest pleading voice. "I've simply got to find him."

"The man wheeled around. 'If you know of anything more important than holding on to his job, name it. . . . Bill's been in here twice this week. I'm doing my best to cover for him, but the office is holding to know what hospital he's in. When they find out he's not down with pneumonia, we'll both be canned. . . . Try any joint where they sell booze,' he suggested, desperately. 'He's preserving himself in alcohol—and nobody knows why.'"

With the aid of a crude map hastily drawn by Bill's assistant Ann began a diligent, systematic search and after almost two hours found Bill at "The Parakeet" staring at the floor, an empty glass before him. When he looked up, she was standing on the opposite side of the table leaning over the chair there.

"Oh, hello," he said, getting to his feet. "Out of your territory, aren't you—Runt? . . . Well, we won't start by battling. Sit down there and I'll order you a glass of milk."

have a phone a minute, please. "She called Selma Runbrecker and when Selma demurred, she said, quietly, 'be there about eight, honey, or wish you had. And I'm depending on you to get hold of Carl and bring him along.'"

And into this sober gathering in Mollie's apartment came Ann, smiling but uneasy and, perhaps for the first time in her life, painfully self-conscious.

By tacit agreement, no one mentioned Lee's name in Ann's presence, and though she had regretted a thousand times she had not followed Mrs. Monday into Lee's room and given her an opportunity to rescind her arbitrary judgment, Ann tried, and in a degree succeeded, in restricting Lee to a tiny corner of her mind. Sometimes, however, he beat his way out of the narrow limits she assigned and earnestly protested the injustice of what she had done; and once she dreamed they were again lying on the grass beside the little stream at the foot of the mountain on which they had cracked up, and she awoke to find her pillow wet with tears.

November was torn from the calendar and early in December life had settled down to a quiet routine. If there had been any developments in the police probe, not even Mollie had been apprised of the fact. Rita was going out with Carl as often as he could get away from Selma; and when he could get away, he usually managed to bring Selma by the apartment for a few minutes. Ann did not like these visits, and Mollie told Carl bluntly she preferred that he either come alone or bring Selma up for the entire evening. "These little pop visits are bad for our nerves," she said. "Stay awhile and we get used to the feeling of holding on to a live wire."

When, two weeks after her return to the apartment, Ann had not put in another appearance, Ann spoke to Mollie about it.

"He's trying to drink himself to death about something," Mollie said, grimly. "It's one of his women, I suppose, but I've never before seen him down and out the way he is now."

The next evening Ann went to Bill's office. A man was busy there; he had no idea where Bill could be found.

"It's terribly important," Ann said in a thin, earnest pleading voice. "I've simply got to find him."

"The man wheeled around. 'If you know of anything more important than holding on to his job, name it. . . . Bill's been in here twice this week. I'm doing my best to cover for him, but the office is holding to know what hospital he's in. When they find out he's not down with pneumonia, we'll both be canned. . . . Try any joint where they sell booze,' he suggested, desperately. 'He's preserving himself in alcohol—and nobody knows why.'"

With the aid of a crude map hastily drawn by Bill's assistant Ann began a diligent, systematic search and after almost two hours found Bill at "The Parakeet" staring at the floor, an empty glass before him. When he looked up, she was standing on the opposite side of the table leaning over the chair there.

"Oh, hello," he said, getting to his feet. "Out of your territory, aren't you—Runt? . . . Well, we won't start by battling. Sit down there and I'll order you a glass of milk."
